[redacted] David Martin, in the office of Senator Thomas J. Dodd, called and asked again whether the Agency would be willing to provide the Senator with confidential memoranda substantiating the fact that the Senator's office was in touch with us on two occasions in an attempt to obtain information on Soviet murders, assassinations and kidnappings. I told Martin that I felt any communication which the Agency might make on this subject would have to be in response to a request from Senator John Stennis in his capacity as Chairman of the Senate Committee on Standards and Conduct and that we should reply directly to him. Martin said this could be "arranged" by having the Senator ask the Chairman to make such a request. I told Martin that whatever the Senator wished to do in this regard, was a matter for determination by the Senator and, similarly, any request which the Chairman might wish to make was up to him. Martin said he appreciated our position in the matter.

[redacted] Talked with William Darden, Senate Armed Services Committee staff, and ascertained that he had not had a chance to brief Senator Russell about the RAMPARTS article. I also pointed out that there had been a specific request out of the White House that the Senator be briefed. Mr. Darden indicated he did not feel it appropriate under the circumstances for him to call the Senator who is away and will not be back in the office until Thursday. He indicated that if the Senator was in touch with him, he would brief him as well as he could on the telephone. I also alerted Darden to the NEW YORK TIMES and WASHINGTON STAR possibilities.

I queried Darden on the official status of Senator Strom Thurmond as a member of the CIA Subcommittee of Senate Armed Services. Darden confirmed that this had been officially approved.

Mr. Meyer gave a brief background on how we got into these activities and also touched on how RAMPARTS got its information. In addition, Mr. Meyer pointed out that it is quite possible that the NEW YORK TIMES would have something on this tomorrow and also that the WASHINGTON STAR would have some parts of this story and may be publishing something soon. Mr. Patman said he understood and certainly if these activities were approved by the President, he would support us and do everything possible to assist. He was requested to let us know if he had any serious approaches on this topic. I will endeavor to keep in touch with him. 25X1
